and natural frankness-not enough education of the moral faculties and of the spiritual mind.

I hold that a child should be taught to use its own mind-to become original, as it were, instead of blindly following without question the ideas and reasonings of others. And 1 also hold that in following this course the average child can be developed mentally by training just as the average child can be developed physically by training.

It has often occurred to me while attending closing exercises at public schools that it was sheer nonsense to teach children to repeat and phonographically reproduce the wisdom of ancient and modern philosophers without ever attempting to teach them to FEEL the truth and real meaning of the words they uttered.

Repetition is not enough. Even a parrot can be taught to quote from Shakespeare, and a horse or a dog can be trained to do some wonderful things. But the human being must not only be taught to do things, but must also be taught to realize and understand the full meaning and importance of the things he doesthe truth and the wisdom contained in the passages he repeats at the the trusts at every turn, taxed to closing exercises. In other words, the limit, with perhaps your land the mental forces must be developed and strengthened by training.

However, a high degree of mental development does not necessarily who voted the straight Republican imply high moral character. LOSING YOUR VOTE.

They were all there-from the year veteran who gloried in voting for the party his father had voted for- Lambert, Benton, Mo. a party, by the way, which would see him die and rot in the gutter and his children starve in the streets, and never stir to help them. And there was the fellow, too, who voted just because he "didn't want to lose his vote."

Let's see about this losing of a vote. I think our ideas differ somewhat as to the persons who really Presidential Electorslose their votes. This man imagined that in voting with the losing side or remaining away from the polls when the principles he believed in were not represented there, he would thereby lose his vote. I hold different views. As thus:
